28. Settings (3)

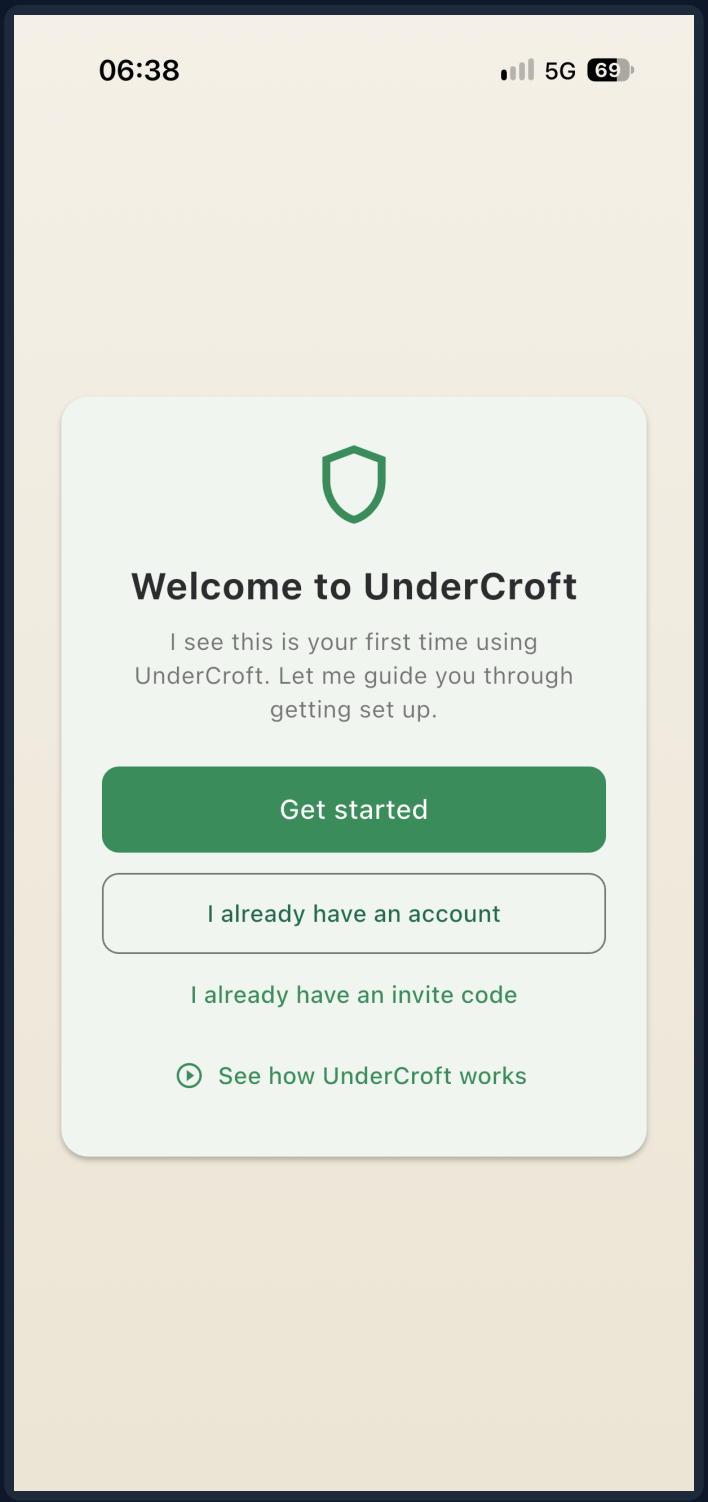

NARRATION

Here you can invite executors and another estate owner. The invite can be sent via copy, email, share or print

Further App settings

29. The executor journey

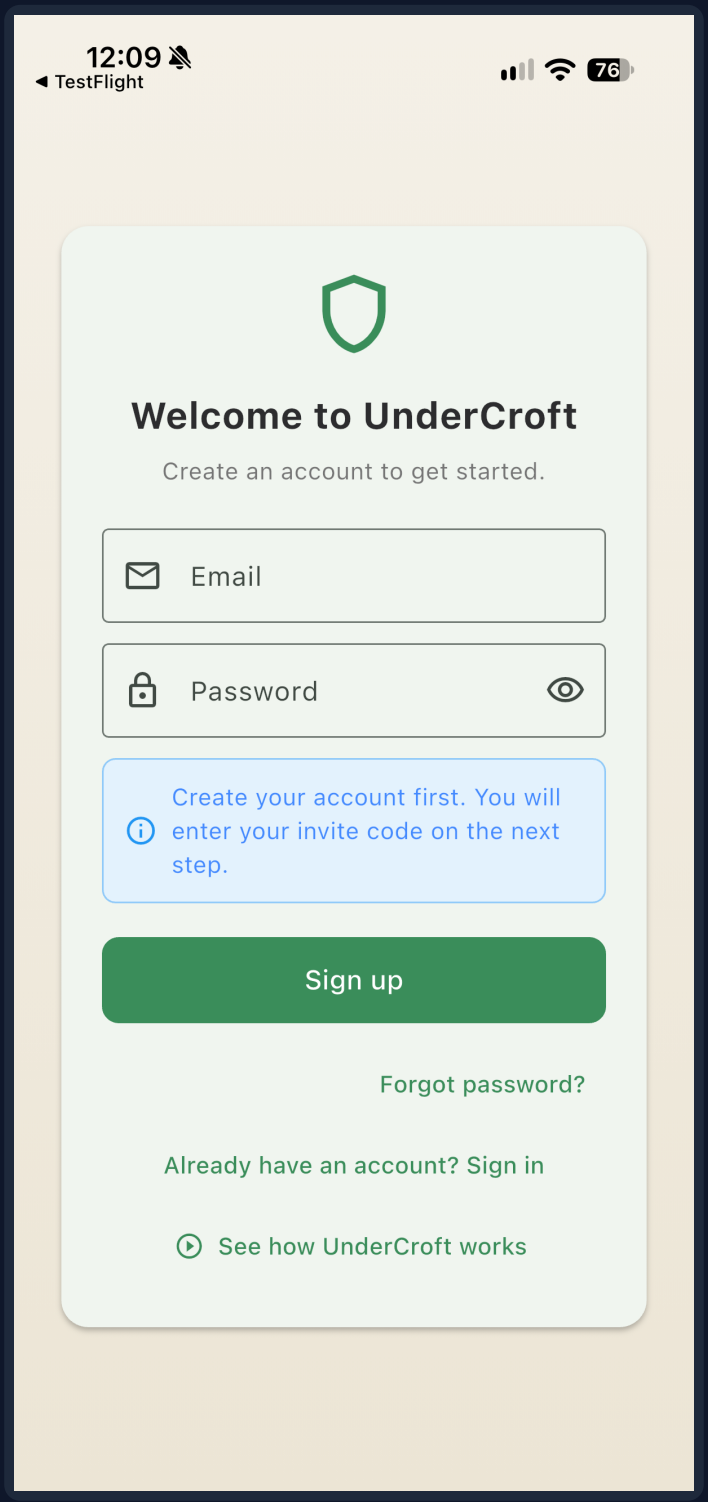

NARRATION

So far we have been the estate owner, setting things up. Now let us switch to the other side, and follow the journey your executor takes. To start with, the executor gets the same login screen after downloading the app. They select "I already have an invite code" as they have an invite the estate owner has sent them previously.

Switching to the executor's point of view.

30. Executor invite

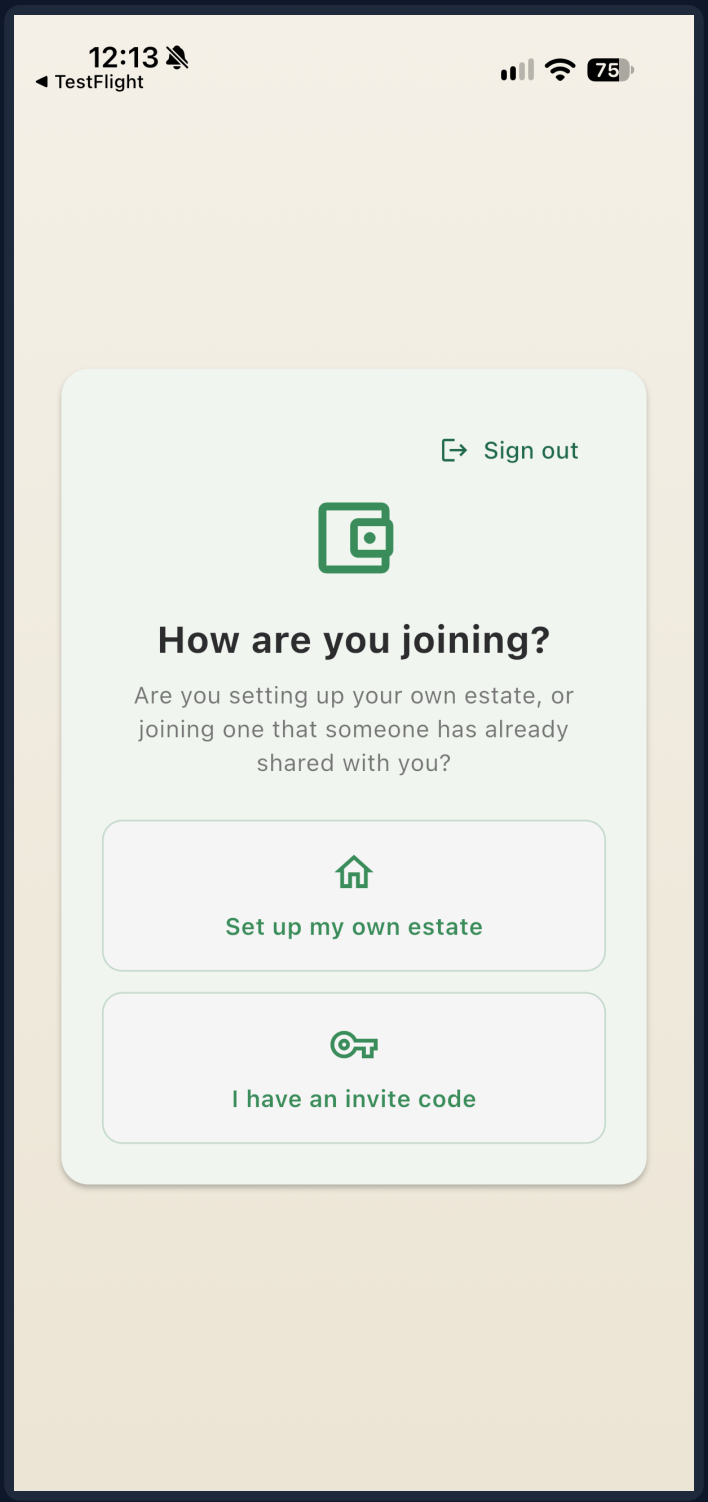

NARRATION

The executor then enters their email and a password of their choice and clicks Sign Up.

The invite the owner sends out.

31. Claiming the invite

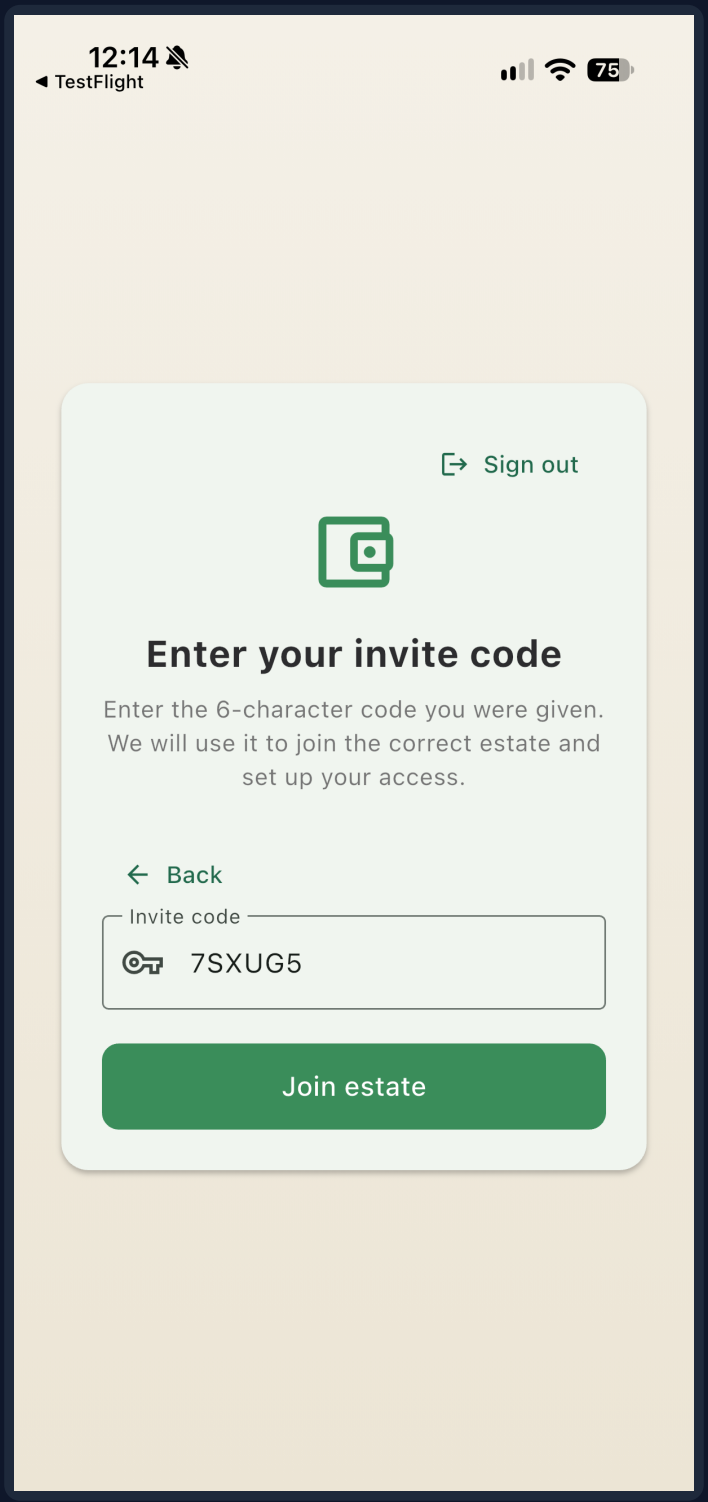

NARRATION

The executor selects "I have an invite code"

The executor signs up and enters the code.

32. Invite code

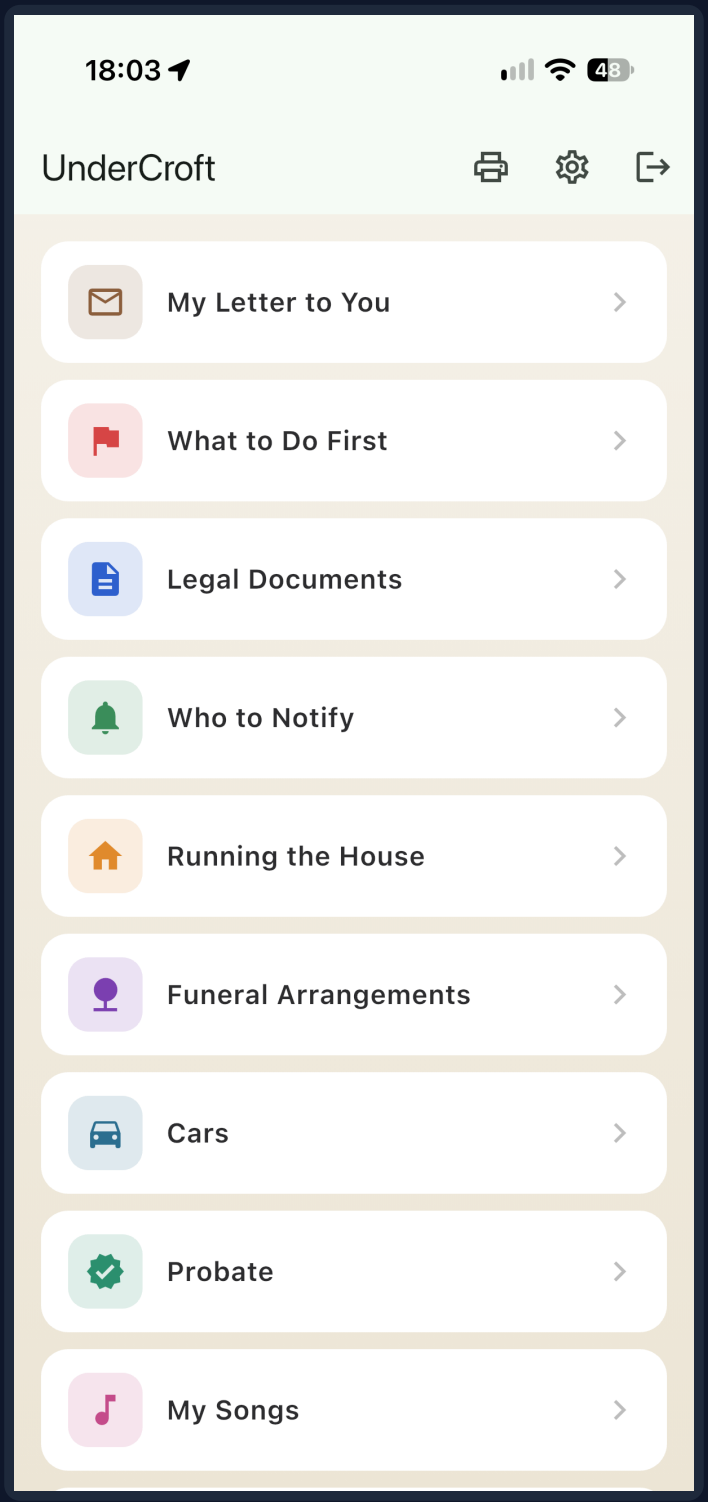

NARRATION

The executor enters the invite code. Once used, it can never be used by anyone else.

Executor inputs invite

33. Executor main view

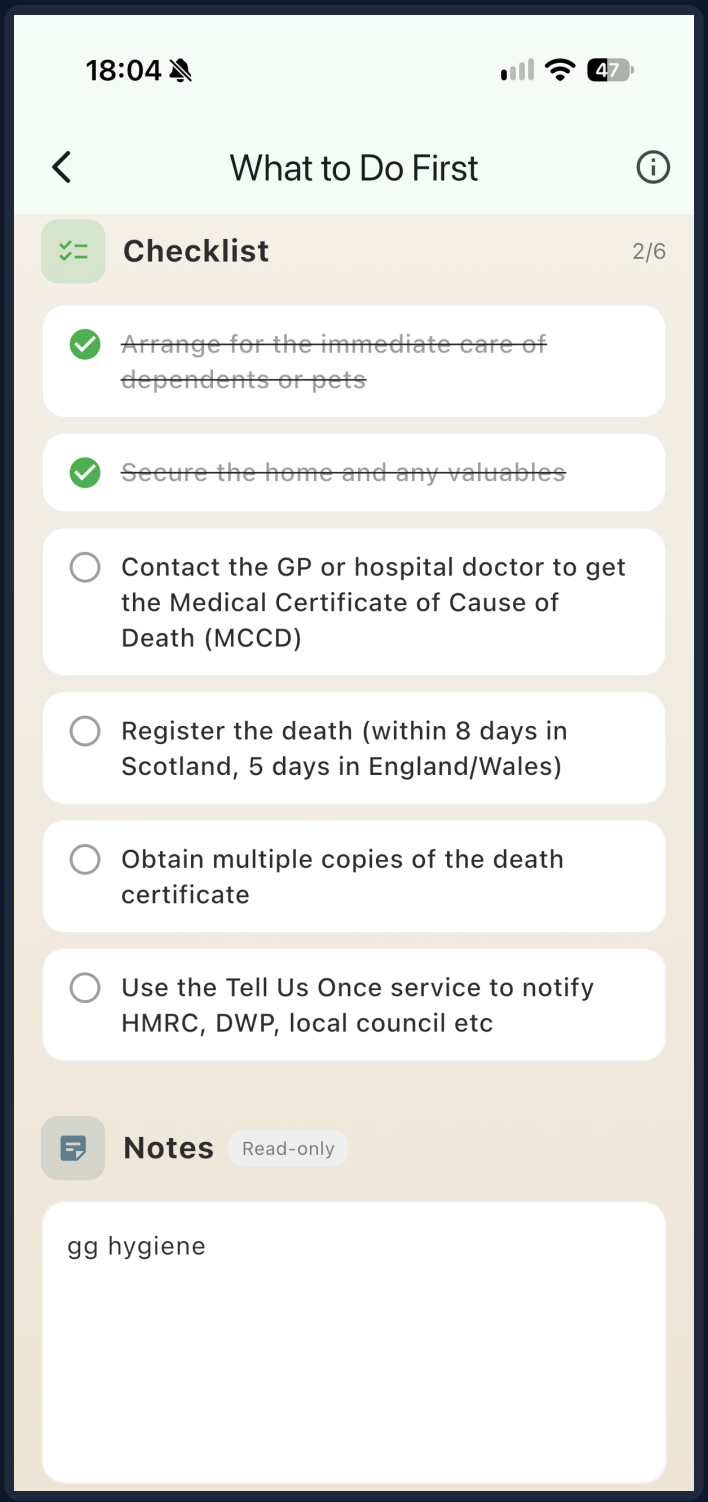

NARRATION

The moment the invite is accepted, the executor sees the estate laid out for them - the letter, what to do first, who to notify, the legal documents, and everything else the owner has recorded.

What the executor sees on joining.

34. Executor read-only view

NARRATION

An executor sees everything clearly, but cannot alter the owner's records. They can tick off the checklist steps as they go, so there is a shared record of what has been done.

What an executor can and cannot change.

35. Everything in one place

NARRATION

Hopefully the demo has given you whole idea of UnderCroft. A few minutes at the kitchen table, and everything your family needs is in one place - ready when they need it.

The point of the journey.
